

I am opposed to allowing electric power companies using power lines to provide internet service. It will interfere with present users of radio spectrum and isn't necessary. Internet through telephone service is already widely available.